New antiballistic defence orders for TenCate

TenCate Advanced Composites has received new orders for the supply of antiballistic materials for European troops in Afghanistan. This relates to supplies for urgent operational requirements.

These orders are expected to generate sales of approximately € 20 million for 2008.

The antiballistic concepts that TenCate Advanced Composites supplies are based on its own developments. These are new armour concepts which satisfy the most stringent requirements in terms of level of protection. TenCate thus possesses its own stand-alone solutions for vehicle protection. These are currently being qualified by a number of European Ministries of Defence. As a result TenCate has acquired a good strategic position with regard to both these urgent operational requirements and new vehicle programmes. In all the projects there has been close cooperation with local players.

In view of the fact that this relates to classified projects, no further details can be provided about the countries, materials or vehicles involved.
