TenCate disassociates itself from website article Brisk magazine

TenCate announces currently that there are no plans for a share issue. If the suggestion has occurred in the website article of Brisk magazine TenCate disassociates itself from it. In respect of the buy and build strategy TenCate strives for growth. Among others through acquisitions. We refer to the phrases regarding this in our Annual Report 2005. In this connection it has been indicated continuously that TenCate will have to rely on the capital market in case of a substantial acquisition. However in that situation the future development of the profit per share will be taken into consideration.
